Jennifer Kratch (WI)—Restoration of Voter Rights

Jennifer is a positive role model to other self-advocates with Guardians who have gone through the fight to earn back their right to vote. She recently spoke a press conference for National Disability Voter Registration week.

“When I was 18, I was appointed a guardian. The judge took my right to vote away. When I went to the self-determination conference in 2013, I heard a lawyer named Martinez tell a story about a girl named Jenny hatch and how she work done getting all of her rights back. That’s when I decided to get my right to vote back, but it took almost 9 months to get my right to vote back. The judge who gave me my right to vote back said that he was glad to give me my right to vote back. I have voted in very election sentence 2016 .
